

ON AIR! COMMUNICATIONS CLINIC

- do you worry that your virtual events will have fingers hovering over the 'LEAVE' button?
- are you wrestling with boring data that you've got to make engaging in a presentation?
- are you looking for ideas to make your hybrid world a success?

JOIN ME, A FORMER BBC JOURNALIST & NEWS PRESENTER, TO DISCOVER HOW BROADCASTERS SOLVE THESE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS CHALLENGES

Bring me any questions you have about your world of communications/webinars/podcasts ... and leave with tried-and-tested tips that will make your next event, staff meeting or 'Town Hall' more effective and more fun.

When? 9.30am every four or five weeks — next up: Wednesday 1st June

How long? 30 minutes (though I keep the doors open for 45 minutes in case you want to chat and compare notes with other comms people a bit more!)

What's the format? 'Open Mic' Q&A to help with your challenges— followed by 'Clip of the Month', a fascinating under-the-bonnet insight into an example from the TV News that I've chosen, because it reveals solutions you can use in your own workplace!

I'm offering this chance to tap into my experience as a BBC broadcaster (and trainer of BBC journalists) for free, because after a happy career, I want to give something back — while offering you a chance to size me up as someone who might be worth paying for as a coach or trainer for yourself, or your teams.

Sounds great! How do I book? I'm limiting it to 25 spots! ... reserve yours here:
